- 25X1 1. The Yugoslav Government is making extensive use of "volunteer" work
25X1 brigades in carrying out the Five Year Plan. Brigades are employed in
25X1 all types of work, including priority projects currently behind schedule.
2. Because of the vulnerability of the brigades, the Cominform is endeavoring to place at least one man in every formation. These agents are responsible for:
- a. Reporting on brigade activities and personalities, especially those unsympathetic to the government.
- b. Where directed, to instigate slowdown tactics and sabotage.
3. Agents in the brigades report to "centers of clandestine Cominform cells of work brigades". Each Federal Republic allegedly has four such centers, in every case directed by a leader of Yugoslav nationality who is responsible for collecting and compiling information from each brigade. On basis of the information, cell leaders issue instructions on specific targets and directions for sabotage to brigade agents.
4. Agents always maintain a pro-Tito cover. They become friendly with less enthusiastic members, lend them money, gradually build up a hatred of the regime, and eventually provide subversive literature. If the individual is interested, he is considered as an active collaborator and is reported to the cell center. If he is not receptive, the Cominform agent reports him to the brigade captain as "Cominformist". Thus the agent wins the trust of the captain and continues to organize with maximum security. Though the system is hazardous, success to date apparently warrants continuance.
5. In addition to low level agents, Cominformists use special agents on directive and administrative levels of more important industries. These are usually professionals, such as engineers, architects and technicians who can cause considerable damage even without the use of explosives. Agents are well paid, and usually receive from twenty to thirty thousand dinars monthly, as well as bonuses, according to the task accomplished.
6. The Yugoslav Government has arrested enough of these agents to understand their methods of operating, but the conspiracy is so vast that it is
